e2e Golf Solutions last week said it will buy online tee-time Web site www.netcaddy.com. Terms of the agreement were not released.

As a firm that sells software to golf courses, e2e, Scottsdale, AZ, looks to increase its presence with golfers who use the Web. It also has partnered with pga.com -- which is a joint venture of the Professional Golfers Association of America and IBM Corp.

Netcaddy.com, Cincinnati, will offer e2e new promotional and publishing online space as well as proprietary technology that helps golf course managers maximize profits, e2e said the increasingly competitive online market for the golfing community sparked the acquisition.

Independent ISP jumpstarts venture unit

By Hanna Hurley

Even with volatile market conditions, six-month-old PSINet Ventures is investing with fearless abandon. The newly formed venture program has exercised almost one quarter of its $1 billion fund, and by this time next year, it intends to have the entire fund invested in between 250 and 300 Internet companies.

PSINet Ventures' current portfolio is heavy with application service providers (ASPs), yet content providers, e-commerce providers, Internet infrastructure manufacturers and incubators round out its investing strategy. Going forward, the VC is pursuing the next generation of business-to-consumer and business-to-business providers.

ABSTRACT:

Golf equipment manufacturer Maxfli moves into new areas with new product introductions. Its Elite golf ball moves it into the premium golf ball market and its Revolution Mid-Size irons moves it into the average-player golf club market. Explained Edward Hughes, EVP-worldwide golf for Dunlop Maxfli Sports (Greenville, SC), the new products are a result of customer segmentation. Research and consumer data was used to design new products.

New marketing deals have been forged between golf equipment manufacturers and PGA players. For instance, Steve Stricker will use Ping (Phoenix, AZ) equipment, Nick Price will represent ChipShot.com, and Kathy Whitworth will represent Square Two (Fairfield, NJ). In other advertising news, Maxfli will offer a sweepstakes in which a winner plays a round of golf with sports stars and Foot Joy (Fairhaven, MA) will offer a sweepstakes in which a winner plays a round of golf with David Duval and gets a trip to Florida.

By Chuck Stogel

Judging by Maxfli, the golf industry may be ready to join those sectors that have moved from a product/engineering focus to one relying on research to sniff out consumers' unmet needs. That was the approach underlying two major Maxfli intros last week at the annual PGA Merchandise Show in Orlando, Fla.: Revolution Mid-Size irons and the Elite golf ball, which reach out to consumers not served by the firm.

The irons bring the year-old Revolution clubs down to the level of the average player, while the three-piece, liquid-center Elite balls mark Maxfli's first move up into a premium category ($52 per dozen). J. Walter Thompson, Atlanta, is agency.

ABSTRACT:

Pebble Beach is still seeking regulatory approval to sell private memberships at the golf course in California. The Los Angeles-based group, which is owned by Minoru Isutani who purchased Pebble Beach, recently received a credit extension from its lender bank Mitsubishi Trust & Banking. Isutani has paid down an estimated $184 mil and retains $400 mil in loans. The company is planning to sell about 1,500 memberships at about $150,000 each in the Pebble Beach National Club as a way to pay off more of the debt. Initial memberships will be sold in Japan, but eventually about half of them would be sold in the United States. Golfers who buy the memberships would gain the right to reserve up to two hours of morning tee times and a total of 60 hotel rooms at the two resorts. The bank is unlikely to foreclose. It is more likely that the bank would require an additional large cash payment.

Independent ISP jumpstarts venture unit

By Hanna Hurley

Even with volatile market conditions, six-month-old PSINet Ventures is investing with fearless abandon. The newly formed venture program has exercised almost one quarter of its $1 billion fund, and by this time next year, it intends to have the entire fund invested in between 250 and 300 Internet companies.

PSINet Ventures' current portfolio is heavy with application service providers (ASPs), yet content providers, e-commerce providers, Internet infrastructure manufacturers and incubators round out its investing strategy. Going forward, the VC is pursuing the next generation of business-to-consumer and business-to-business providers.

ABSTRACT:

Golf equipment manufacturer Maxfli moves into new areas with new product introductions. Its Elite golf ball moves it into the premium golf ball market and its Revolution Mid-Size irons moves it into the average-player golf club market. Explained Edward Hughes, EVP-worldwide golf for Dunlop Maxfli Sports (Greenville, SC), the new products are a result of customer segmentation. Research and consumer data was used to design new products.

New marketing deals have been forged between golf equipment manufacturers and PGA players. For instance, Steve Stricker will use Ping (Phoenix, AZ) equipment, Nick Price will represent ChipShot.com, and Kathy Whitworth will represent Square Two (Fairfield, NJ). In other advertising news, Maxfli will offer a sweepstakes in which a winner plays a round of golf with sports stars and Foot Joy (Fairhaven, MA) will offer a sweepstakes in which a winner plays a round of golf with David Duval and gets a trip to Florida.

By Chuck Stogel

Judging by Maxfli, the golf industry may be ready to join those sectors that have moved from a product/engineering focus to one relying on research to sniff out consumers' unmet needs. That was the approach underlying two major Maxfli intros last week at the annual PGA Merchandise Show in Orlando, Fla.: Revolution Mid-Size irons and the Elite golf ball, which reach out to consumers not served by the firm.

The irons bring the year-old Revolution clubs down to the level of the average player, while the three-piece, liquid-center Elite balls mark Maxfli's first move up into a premium category ($52 per dozen). J. Walter Thompson, Atlanta, is agency.

The marriage between the golf industry and the Internet looks like a lasting one. The Internet has become a key tool for golf courses and golf-related businesses to reach enthusiasts.

Almost any course worth playing has a Web site. These sites often promote a course's scenery and list the amenities to attract players. The easiest way to find many of these addresses is to type in the course's name preceded by ``www.'' and followed by ``.com.''

HOUSTON -- Dining-portal sweepstakes entrant Restaurant . com , which was launched just two months ago, is leveraging alliances with Sysco Corp. and Compaq Computer Corp. in a bid to become a dominant player.

Using giant distributor Sysco's marketing savvy and extensive sales force as its point of entry into the market, Restaurant . com is targeting independent operators and smaller chains as well as consumers. The site's developers have publicized ambitious plans to create a searchable database with hundreds of thousands of restaurants and to supply visitors with information about dining trends and healthful eating, among other content topics. They also said the site would eventually support marketing and other e-business functions, such as online ordering of takeout and delivery foods, wines and gift certificates.

ABSTRACT:

For certain major purchases, shoppers will probably always want to visit a store where they can see and touch what they're buying.

But in our time-stressed society, the concept of shopping at home on the Internet is becoming an increasingly popular alternative to battling the crowds at the mall.

More than $2.4 billion worth of goods were sold on-line last year, about four times the volume in 1996 when sales hit $518 million, according to Forrester Research in Cambridge, Mass.

Travel is the titan of consumer Internet commerce. Consumers venturing on the Internet spend more on travel than on anything else.

Travel purchases top even the amount spent on PCs and consumer electronics -- a trend likely to continue to 2002, according to the findings of a recent major study done for the Travel Industry Association of America.

While these kinds of statistics might give travel agents pause, there are clues that the end of their trip is still far away. Right now, although Internet use is climbing, the quality and variety of some of the services offered isn't catching up.

ABSTRACT: Restaurant . com created an all-purpose dining portal with menus, video tours, and a reservation feature, and it charged restaurants to put their webpages on the site. But CEO Scott Lutwak could not prove that the effort lured diners through the clients' doors, and the restaurants quickly bailed. After going back to investors, Restaurant . com bought CitySpree at a bankruptcy auction for less than $500,000 and refocused on selling gift certificates. Lutwak and his team relaunched in July 2001, and the concept took off. Revenues doubled in the first five months. Today the company sells about 75,000 gift certificates a month at an average of about $9 each. Lutwak says the company brought in $5 million in revenues last year, is growing 12% each quarter, and has been profitable since the third quarter of 2002.

ABSTRACT: Meeting attendees love to stuff their faces, especially after hours of PowerPoint presentations, focus groups, and motivational speeches. According to the Washington DC-based National Restaurant Association there are 858,000 restaurants in the US. Finding the quintessential establishment requires a little finesse and insider insight, the kind of expertise that seasoned destination management companies (DMCs) are known for. DMCs from some of the top meeting cities in the country discuss the picks of their town's best budget, moderate, and expensive restaurants for groups.

ABSTRACT: Dining-portal sweepstakes entrant Restaurant . com, which was launched just 2 months ago, is leveraging alliances with Sysco Corp. and Compaq Computer Corp. in a bid to become a dominant player. Using giant distributor Sysco's marketing savvy and extensive sales force as its point of entry into the market, Restaurant . com is targeting independent operators and smaller chains as well as consumers. The site's developers plan to create a search database with hundreds of thousands of restaurants and to supply visitors with information. The site will also be marketing Compaq's new Ipaq line of Internet-ready PCs.

ABSTRACT: The Internet's World Wide Web makes it easy to create an attractive digital monument to an operation and what it is all about. But this wonderfully enabling technology can also make it easy to create a site that is monumentally ugly. Until high-speed Internet access from cable and telephone companies becomes widespread, do not bog down your Internet site with overlarge bandwidth-clogging graphics. Keep in mind that Internet surfers use a surfeit of computers, screen resolutions and connection methods, and not everyone owns the latest gear. So, if cliackable images or image maps are used as navigational tools, make sure to also include text-based links on the same page. Also, be consistent and creative, by using starter documents or templates in Web design programs that make it easier than in the past to create a professional-looking site.

ABSTRACT: A recent survey concluded that nearly 2/3 of all restaurant customers queried say they do not get the service they deserve. This argument was reinforced recently when Tim and Nina Zagat, co-publishers of the Zagat Survey, introduced a proposed Diners' Bill of Rights. A draft of the bill is posted on the Zagat Survey's new homepage. In recent surveys, more than 60% of diners in this country rated service as their number one complaint. The Zagats have a point, but if customers are going to demand a bill of rights, why should restaurant operators not do the same?

Even without a guidebook at their disposal, most gay visitors to London would soon find their way to the nearest gay bar. Call it gaydar if you must, but would those same visitors be as quick to locate the best venues for experimental gay theatre, or the nearest place for a night of camp comedy? Would they stumble across the gay-friendliest hotels and restaurants, and would they really make the most of all that gay London has to offer - or simply go on a gay pub crawl?

Over the past decade, the scene in London has grown at such a rate that it has become the gay capital of Europe, if not the world. For more than 20 years Time Out magazine has been providing London's gay and lesbian community with a weekly guide to what's on, and now it has decided to launch a dedicated guide.

A veritable world tour of a menu: choose from Scottish beef fillet, lamb marinated in Moroccan spices, pigs' trotters, veal fillet with rosti, Oban scallops, gnocchi, gravadlax, and foie-gras terrine. But it works. We tried grilled organic salmon with saffron potatoes and a herb and lardon dressing, and pan-fried halibut with chorizo-and-thyme croquette and beetroot salsa. Side orders included roast butternut squash with cumin and cabbage. The intimidating array of ingredients was redeemed by the consistently high quality of both the produce and chef Stuart Muir's cooking. Adventurous puddings included chilled red-berry and champagne soup with mascarpone parfait, banana tarte tatin with vanilla ice-cream, and Amaretto parfait with poached apricots.

The sun had barely risen as the plane touched down in Sydney. I dumped my bag at the hotel, showered and by 9am was sipping a pounds 1 latte on the deck of the Manly ferry. The world's largest natural harbour, sundrenched and yawning, glittered as gulls wheeled above the criss-crossing yachts.

Once I'd strolled along Manly's harbour beach, I walked across the isthmus to the wilder eastern Pacific-facing bay where a mile of surf fizzed along the white sand. Beefcakes and babes skated, middle-aged men played football and children ran about in the surf.

NEW YORK, May 5 /PRNewswire/ -- Tribute restaurant (Farmington Hills, MI) is delighted to announce that Executive Chef Takashi Yagihashi was tonight awarded "Best Chef Midwest" in the 13th Annual James Beard Foundation Awards. Yagihashi had been nominated for the Award four times over the past five years -- in 1999, 2001, 2002, and 2003. His win was broadcast across the Marriott Marquis ballroom in the heart of New York City's Times Square. Abandoning his usual reserve, Yagihashi thanked his wife Kathy with an emotional "I love you"; partner Maitre d' and Sommelier Mickey Bakst; the Wisne family who own Tribute; and the entire Tribute staff, without whom the award would not have been possible. The James Beard Foundation Awards represent our nation's top honors for culinary professionals.

This tribute joins Yagihashi's long list of accomplishments, including his year 2000 citation by Food & Wine as one of "America's Ten Best New Chefs," and coverage in national publications such as Bon Appetit, USA Today, and Chef, among others. This May 18th, Tribute will be inducted into the Nation's Restaurant News "Fine Dining Hall of Fame," while Pastry Chef Michael Laiskonis for the second year in a row has been named one of Pastry Art & Design's "10 Best Pastry Chefs." Last September, Tribute was awarded a Wine Spectator "Best Of" Award of Excellence for its wine program's "vertical collections from top producers, extended breadth over several major wine regions and superior harmony with the menu." For two years running, Tribute has been named one of the top restaurants in America by Gourmet, and the restaurant maintains 4-star ratings from AAA and Mobil.

MAKING TECHNOLOGY MORE PALATABLE FOR RESTAURANTS: A good restaurant manager sometimes needs to have a head like a computer. It's not easy to remember all the preferences of an establishment's best customers, from where they want to be seated to how they want their favorite dishes prepared.

Of course, technology can help, but many restaurants have been reluctant to embrace computers with the exception of their point-of-sale systems, which they use to control cash receipts, employee attendance and sometimes inventory.

ABSTRACT: Foodservice companies in the US are considering ways to improve customer service, as consumer complaints continue to rise at pervasive levels. According to the 1999 Zagat Survey, among the numerous complaints encountered by restaurant owners, lack of quality service tops the list. This problem is particularly prevalent in key cities including Atlanta, Philadelphia and Las Vegas. In order to address these problems, restaurant managers must underscore the need to render courteous, hospital and informative service to clients.

ABSTRACT: With its posh resorts, scores of golf courses, and what seem to be endlessly blue skies, the Valley of the Sun has long been a draw for combining work and play. While Phoenix now ranks among the country's biggest cities, there remains an open, relaxed ambience to this desert enclave. Not surprisingly, the spectacular Southwest environment is embraced in all aspects: arts and culture, shopping, dining, health spas, a lively, sophisticated nightlife, and abundant recreation. Information about Phoenix and Scottsdale of interest to meeting planners.

ABSTRACT: Electronic branding for foodservice is mostly an untapped opportunity. But a virtual roundtable of branding experts feels it does not matter - that it is better to be online, even making mistakes and learning, because the opportunity is so great to change the way people think of your brand and interact with your site - so long as you can get them there.

We hadn't intended to bring Tenby to Montreal. My vision of lounging in an outdoor cafe sipping red wine - for which I would ask in English and not be scorned - did not include a firmly-gripped leash wrapped around my wrist. But when our dog-sitter cancelled at the last minute we had no option. I called the Bureau de Tourisme and asked if it would be possible to switch our reservation to a dog-friendly hotel.

"Mais oui," replied the agent sweetly. And that is how I, my friend and our 60 lb lab-mix, Tenby, came to stay at the elegant Ritz Carlton in downtown Montreal.

COLUMBIA, Md., April 22 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- Carlson Hotels Worldwide, which includes Regent International Hotels; Radisson Hotels & Resorts; Park Plaza Hotels & Resorts; Country Inns & Suites By Carlson; and Park Inn, launched MICROS's OPERA Xpress at its new Park Inn property in Omaha, Nebraska, demonstrating its continued adoption of the technology solutions of MICROS Systems, Inc. . OPERA Xpress, one of the newest PMS offerings from the hospitality technology leader, includes innovative functionality and single key-stroke check-in, enabling Carlson to streamline operations and service guests more efficiently.

Park Inn is the first Carlson brand to deploy the streamlined front-office property management system, OPERA Xpress. "We have chosen OPERA because it allows us to maintain a single interface with our Curtis-C Central Reservation System for both our limited service and full-service properties, and its scalability will let it grow with us," explained Scott Heintzeman, CIO for Carlson Hotels Worldwide. "By using MICROS's standard XML interface specification, Opera Xchange, to integrate with our existing systems, we were able to connect OPERA Xpress with our Curtis-C Central Reservations System quickly and efficiently."

ACCPAC International, Inc. a subsidiary of Computer Associates International, Inc. , today announced that Carlson Hospitality Worldwide has entered into an agreement with ACCPAC to subscribe to ACCPAC Online hosted accounting services for use by its Radisson Hotels & Resorts around the world. The agreement provides Radisson hotels with anytime, anywhere access to the ACCPAC Advantage Series financial management system under the software-as-a-service model via ACCPAC Online.

The Carlson Hospitality Worldwide chain, headquartered in Minneapolis, Minnesota, includes more than 430 Radisson Hotels in 59 countries. The company regularly acquires properties with unique back-office systems, and the resulting consolidation of financial data had become a staff-intensive and inefficient process.

Rarely, if ever, have mere holiday-makers had the opportunity to help in the healing of a city's soul. Yet this is the privilege awaiting anyone who chooses to visit New York in the near future. The early days of recovery after 11 September find a city still apprehensive about its future, yet determined to regain its spirit and return to some semblance of normality. At the same time, New Yorkers are welcoming visitors with a generosity unprecedented in that formerly hard-nosed city, one perhaps unmatched anywhere in the world in these troubled times.

As one local says: "We are coming together like never before. Everyone is so connected."

As onlookers "ooh" and "ahh," Kilauea's lava flows down to the sea off the coast of the Big Island. On Oahu, travelers stand in remembrance at the Arizona Memorial at Pearl Harbor, and on Maui, they can explore the historic whaling town of Lahaina. And for 2002, there's a new way to visit all these Hawaii attractions--during a cruise on the new Norwegian Star.

With a capacity of 2,240 passengers, the Star is Norwegian Cruise Line's largest ship, and the industry's only major ship sailing seven-night, year-round Hawaii itineraries. It departs weekly from Honolulu on Sundays and from Maui on Fridays. Both itineraries include calls at Kauai, Maui, BEDFORD, TEXAS -- Aloha Technologies, makers of the Aloha line of point-of-sale software and services, entered into an agreement with online reservations provider iSeatz.com to offer Internet-based restaurant reservation services to Aloha's customers, sources at the POS firm said.

Under the terms of the agreement, the iSeatz. com reservation management tools will be added to Aloha's Web-based enterprise management system, Aloha Enterprise.com. ABSTRACT: For Scott Dever, director of information systems for the 78-unit casual-dining operator Logan's Roadhouse, a career combining computers and foodservice was a natural fit. In his role as director of information systems for Logan's, Dever oversees all POS and home-office hardware and software and supervises a 6-person department. Since joining the casual-dining chain three years ago, Dever has been focused on improving Logan's basic technology infrastructure. Projects have included an overhaul of the chain's POS and back-office systems.

ABSTRACT: In a quest to bring airline-like pricing and elementary-yield management to the restaurant industry, a trio of new e-businesses have set up shop on the World Wide Web. Each of the new ventures: iDine.com, Yougottaeat.com and Dinnerbroker.com, hold out the promise of increasing customer traffic in off-peak hours by offering potential guests incentives in the form of discounts. Some also offer to get consumers tables during traditionally hard to book periods, such as Friday night or during the holiday season - for a surcharge. It is difficult to judge how well consumers are taking to dynamic pricing in restaurants because of the newness of the concept and the services.
